

WaterLex would like to hear from potential policy interns who have a strong focus on human rights and public international law to support our current research programme. Our internship programme runs for 6 months – this position is due to start beginning of September 2017.

The following is required:

- International Development Degree (with water governance research specialization)
- Experience and/or strong knowledge on economic, social and cultural rights, ideally with a focus on the right to water, health, healthy environment or to an adequate standard of living.
- Experience and/or strong knowledge or understanding of water governance at national basin regional level.
- Experience in reviewing national policy frameworks for WASH or water governance – An understanding of the Sustainable Development Agenda 2030
- Candidates who do not have practical experience on these elements, but have written papers or assignments are encouraged to highlight these in their application
- Excellent written (English) and research skills
- Knowledge of both Spanish and French will be considered as an advantage

If this might interest you, please get in touch by sending your CV and cover letter to [info\[at\]waterlex.org](mailto:info@waterlex.org)

Name of CV file should be in the format of PI_LAST NAME_FIRST NAME_CV

Name of Cover Letter should be in the format of PI_LAST NAME_FIRST NAME_COVER LETTER